HTML

From Wikipedia, the free encyclopedia

For the use of HTML on Wikipedia, see Help:HTML in wikitext.

HTML or HyperText Markup Language is the standard markup language used to create web pages.

HTML is written in the form of HTML elements consisting of tags enclosed in angle brackets (like `<html>`). HTML tags most commonly come in pairs like `<h1>` and `</h1>` , although some tags represent empty elements and so are unpaired, for example `` . The first tag in a pair is the start tag, and the second tag is the end tag (they are also called opening tags and closing tags).

A web browser can read HTML files and compose them into visible or audible web pages. The browser does not display the HTML tags, but uses them to interpret the content of the page. HTML describes the structure of a website semantically along with cues for presentation, making it a markup language rather than a programming language.

HTML elements form the building blocks of all websites. HTML allows images and objects to be embedded and can be used to create interactive forms. It provides a means to create structured documents by denoting structural semantics for text such as headings, paragraphs, lists, links, quotes and other items. It can embed scripts written in languages such as JavaScript which affect the behavior of HTML web pages.

Web browsers can also refer to Cascading Style Sheets (CSS) to define the look and layout of text and other material. The W3C, maintainer of both the HTML and the CSS standards, encourages the use of CSS over explicit presentational HTML.^[1]

A screenshot of a web browser's developer console. The 'Console' tab is selected. The console shows a JavaScript prompt function being executed: `> name = prompt("what's your name?"); console.log(name);`. The prompt function is shown in red text, and the `console.log` is in black. The console is currently empty of output.

A screenshot of a JavaScript prompt dialog box. The dialog box has a title bar that says "minus.deepr.com says:". Below the title bar, the text "what's your name?" is displayed. A text input field contains the word "Taker". At the bottom right of the dialog box, there are two buttons: "Cancel" and "OK".

A screenshot of a web browser's developer console. The 'Console' tab is selected. The console shows the same JavaScript prompt function being executed: `> name = prompt("what's your name?"); console.log(name);`. Below the code, the output "Taker" is displayed in black text. To the right of the output, the text "VM1034:2" is visible. Below the output, there is a prompt character `<` followed by the text "undefined". At the bottom of the console, there is a blue prompt character `>`.

StoneBerg

Stoneberg Farm dates back to 1892. Located in the Piketberg District. At the foot of the Piketberg Mountain under "Engels Man Se Baken"(S 32-41-36.22 E 18-35-05.94) A 1,052 ha farm that Mr. Robert Stone started from the last decade,1997, to cultivate olive orchards and rooibos tea. He positioned this farm model for olive production, recreation and education purpose.

In the early years, we have tried on livestock, watermelon and many vegetables as supplement for the running cost of the farm.

Through many years of personal trip in a long life journey, Mr. Robert Stone got inspired by a wise man showed him the much bigger purpose of life. From that destined day after, he think deeply on the meaning of life and the meaning of being a human. At last, he realized throughout all industries, farming is one of most fundamental function of a country. Despite how advance our technology or how civilize we develop into, agriculture products will always have its position. In the other hand, farming itself offers large number of working opportunities if compare to other industry. In this way, job creation is possible and will provide a sense of security to the employee. Stoneberg is following the principle of 'take from people and use for people.

Stoneberg has planted the first olive tree back to the year 2000. Till now, there are 25,860 olive trees stand proudly on the land of Stoneberg. It is about 80ha. Stoneberg has its own nursery which are from the cuttings. The target area size is 200ha.

Our Olive

All our olive is prepared under traditional procedure. It is through the procedure of hand picking, wash, brine, sanitize and into the packaging.

Olive has several health benefits. Among many mineral, proteins and vitamins, polyphenols serve as strong natural antioxidants that boast a host of beneficial effects, such as lowering bad cholesterol (LDL), reduce the risk of blood and heart vessel disorder and stop cancer cells from growing.
